

Rae Langton

SEXUAL SOLIPSISM

Keywords: pornography, love, solipsism, objectification

The article presents a philosophical analysis of pornography and its impact. The author suggests that pornography instantiates two kinds of solipsism. The first kind of solipsism involves treating things as people; the second kind of solipsism involves treating people as things. The paper also investigates the possible connections between these two solipsisms.